Obama's Power Grab:

An Insider's Look at the Case Against the Clean Power Plan

A Lunchtime Discussion Featuring:

ELBERT LIN

SOLICITOR GENERAL, WEST VIRGINIA

ORAL ADVOCATE, STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA, ET AL., V. EPA

The Columbus Lawyers Chapter of the Federalist Society and The Buckeye Institute cordially invite you to a luncheon discussing the legal issues surrounding the Obama administration's Clean Power Plan. The Clean Power Plan is the EPA's first attempt at regulating carbon emissions and aims to reduce power plant emissions by 32% by 2030. Twenty-six states and a number of other groups – including The Buckeye Institute – have challenged the Clean Power Plan. In February, the Supreme Court of The United States issued a stay on the implementation of the Clean Power Plan while litigation is ongoing in the Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit.

Elbert Lin is the Solicitor General of West Virginia. In that capacity, he reports directly to the Attorney General and acts as the State's chief appellate lawyer, oversees the issuance of Attorney General Opinions, and manages all legal issues and litigation involving the federal government. He is counsel of record for West Virginia in several cases challenging actions by federal agencies, including the case challenging the Clean Power Plan.

The cost is $20 ($15 if you already paid Columbus Lawyers Chapter dues for the 2015-2016 program year and $5 for students). Lunch is included. R.S.V.P. by June 24 to guarantee your seat, meal, and pre-printed nametag. Call Erin Sutter at (614) 224-4422 or email ColumbusFedSoc@Gmail.com with any questions. To join or renew your dues for the Columbus Lawyers Chapter, please bring a check for an additional $25 payable to The Federalist Society or pay the dues through the Eventbrite website.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Ohio suffers biggest drop in labor force participation in 26 years, July report shows

COLUMBUS -- More than 24,000 Ohioans stopped looking for work in July, causing the biggest drop in the state's labor force participation since 1990. The unemployment rate fell slightly, but only because there were fewer people in the state's labor force, according to a policy analyst with Ohio's free-market think tank.

Joe Nichols at The Buckeye Institute said policymakers should be extremely concerned by Ohio's two straight months of falling labor force participation rates.

Nichols said today's July jobs report from the Ohio Department of Job and Family Services shows small businesses and other private sector employers did not have the ability to absorb all the people seeking jobs, and now those people have stopped looking for work as a result.

"Ohioans clearly wanted to work, but the state's employers did not have the money and resources to hire them," Nichols said. "This should be a sign to state leaders that we need more policies that keep money in the hands of job creators and not government."

The most job losses in the state came from construction (-3,600). The most job gains in July occurred in the health care and social assistance sector (+6,400) and local government (+3,100).

"It's discouraging that state government was the leading job creator in June and now local government is a top job creator in July," Nichols said. "Government doesn't move our state forward; small businesses, entrepreneurs, and workers do. We need to make sure employers have the ability to create new jobs for the many Ohioans who want to work."

The Buckeye Institute analyzes Ohio's unemployment rate to identify policy solutions for increasing job opportunities and strengthening the state economy.

Dayton Daily News | Ohio unemployment shrinks along with workforce

"[A]nother 24,000 workers dropped out of the labor force last month, which was largely responsible for the lower unemployment rate and caused the biggest drop in labor force participation since 1990, according to Joe Nichols, a policy analyst with The Buckeye Institute.... Nichols said the July jobs report indicates small businesses and other private-sector employers did not have the ability to absorb all the people seeking jobs."

The Columbus Dispatch | Dublin district wasn't transparent

"As reported in the June 3 Dispatch article 'Dublin schools could seize building,' the district failed to secure a vacant building because it bid on that space anonymously and refused to disclose its identity after being asked by the property seller to do so. As a result, Dublin has threatened to use eminent domain to secure the space from a private company."

Buckeye Institute secures win in legal battle over early voting

COLUMBUS -- The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit ruled in The Buckeye Institute's favor today on Ohio's early voting law. The court reversed a federal judge's decision requiring Ohio to expand its already nation-leading early voting law.

"Ohio voters can go to the polls this fall knowing the integrity of the state's electoral process is more protected," Daniel J. Dew, a legal fellow with The Buckeye Institute, said. "Ohio voters, our law-making system, and the entire nation who will be watching our state this November won today."

On May 24, a federal judge overturned an Ohio General Assembly law, which set the state's early voting at 29 days. Challengers alleged that a 34-year-old federal law required Ohio to offer even more days of early voting. Secretary of State Jon Husted noted that Ohio's 29-day period for casting absentee ballots puts the state in the top 10 nationwide for early voting.

Sixth Circuit Judge David McKeague called the challengers' position "astonishing," as it would prohibit states from modifying their electoral procedures.

An amicus brief submitted by The Buckeye Institute's Legal Center supported Secretary Husted's defense of Ohio's absentee voting period. Representing The Buckeye Institute in the case was Michael Carvin, an election and appellate law expert with the global Jones Day law firm.

"The Buckeye Institute's Legal Center will continue to stand up for Ohioans against judges who ignore the clear intent of the law," Dew said. "This victory also strengthens the laws of 40 other states that have fewer absentee days than Ohio, a national leader in early voting."

Buckeye Institute - A Message from the President

Message from Buckeye President (who just today finished his birthday present trip to Wyoming):

"We fought 50+ mph winds over the course of the two day climb, which caused many other groups to turn back... It was one of the coldest ascent days the guide had ever seen. Here I am straddling a length of rock with my foot dangling over a 3000 foot vertical drop--all worth it. Grand Teton summit was a worthy challenge indeed." -- Robert Alt (4:35 p.m. today)

Thank you most kindly for your ongoing support of The Buckeye Institute and our work.

We dedicate our daily lives to Buckeye's unofficial motto of "doing hard things" and climbing metaphorical mountains policy-wise every chance we get. All the while, our fearless leader spends his vacation time demonstrating how to climb those literal mountains one step at a time. We are inspired to keep pushing upward in the face of adversity, and hope you are too.

THE BUCKEYE INSTITUTE

Good fortune.

That is what Ohio's earliest inhabitants said came from a buckeye tree. And it is what The Buckeye Institute is bringing to our state, and country, today and in the years to come.

Just like Ohio's beloved state tree, The Buckeye Institute has deep roots going back to our founding in 1989. And so, too, like a buckeye, we are growing to greater heights.

Today we are pleased to announce the launching of our new look, logo, video, and website, which will allow us to engage state policymakers, the media, and our supporters like never before. Click here or on our new introductory video below to see for yourself.

Whether it is in health care coverage, criminal justice, energy prices, or access to jobs, the states could use some good fortune. That is why The Buckeye Institute will continue to grow free-market policies that enable people to lead fulfilling lives and cultivate those successful policies in other states beyond Ohio.

Already The Buckeye Institute has been recognized for our first-in-the-nation legal reforms, our firm stance to keep the federal government out of our energy policies, and our innovative solutions to curtail bureaucratic occupational licensing rules so that every Ohioan can pursue his or her dream job.

Building on our rich history and brand-new symbol representing our past, present, and future, together we are making Ohio the state where free people and free markets can blossom for the whole country to see. And, together, we will continue to branch out like a well-established tree to provide sound policy solutions for every state.

Subject: Labor deserves a day to vote

THE BUCKEYE INSTITUTE

Fittingly today, on Labor Day, The Buckeye Institute released its latest report, "One Man, One Vote, One Time? Re-election Votes Hold Unions Accountable to Their Members." This timely piece demonstrates how regularly held union elections ensure that workers are satisfied with their union representation and the leadership for which they pay.

A shockingly high number of Americans have never been able to vote for their unions before. It's time for workers to have their voting rights restored.

Today, 94 percent of unionized private sector workers...

...are in a union they never voted to endorse.

As you'll see in the report, giving those 94 percent of private sector workers a vote will take an act of Congress—and we all know how Washington, D.C. works. That's where The Buckeye Institute comes in: We have innovative state-level policy solutions that lawmakers across the country can implement in their own states to provide workers with their long-overdue voting rights.

Elected officials know what it's like to stand before the voters and make their case to the people they represent. Union leaders should do the same before the workers they represent too. It's only fair.

Thanks Shawn.

The Comms team brainstormed some alternatives to HOPE, as I think it's important we distinguish ourselves from other programs. We will have a logo/one-pager completed very soon as a possible idea.

Also, I'm wondering if we can build upon the one pager document we already put together that outlines all the work we've done. I personally think it's more pleasing to the eye... we can incorporate member pictures and more rhetoric to make it more closely related to the Wisconsin one...

Thoughts?

U.S. Supreme Court: Ohio law on early voting will stand, Buckeye's Legal Center celebrates victory

The final "vote" is in: The integrity of Ohio's early voting process will not be threatened, as the U.S. Supreme Court declined today to hear an appeal to overturn the state's generous early voting law. The Buckeye Institute's Legal Center supported the Ohio law in its legal briefing to the courts.

Today's decision is also a significant victory for Secretary of State Jon Husted, who defended the Ohio law.

"Ohio voters can go to the polls this fall knowing the integrity of the state's electoral process is more protected," Daniel J. Dew, Buckeye's criminal justice fellow said last month when the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit ruled in Buckeye's favor. "Ohio voters, our law-making system, and the entire nation who will be watching our state this November won today."

The Buckeye Institute's Legal Center litigates at the local, state, and federal levels. It has submitted legal briefs to various courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States.

Subject: The right to vote

THE BUCKEYE INSTITUTE

Workers deserve a voice — and a vote. As we showed in our Labor Day report, too many public and private sector workers don't have that opportunity. That is why The Buckeye Institute is telling their story.

Today, in The Columbus Dispatch, Buckeye's Rea S. Hederman Jr. wrote about how:

In two months, Ohioans will have the ultimate say on whether their public officials are representing them adequately. If they aren't, voters can bring about a change. Workers should have those same rights when it comes to their union representation.

After just one election, a union will remain workers' bargaining voice indefinitely, regardless of whether its leaders are keeping their campaign promises, spending members' dues properly, or representing employees appropriately in contract negotiations.

But don't take just our word for it. One national union leader admitted to the Washington Post that his union had taken "things for granted. We stopped communicating with people, because we didn't feel like we needed to." Worker voting rights no doubt would inspire that same leader, and others, to take a different approach.

Ohio workforce again takes a dramatic hit, August jobs report shows

MEDIA CONTACT: Jeff Reed, (614) 224-3255

COLUMBUS—Ohio's labor force suffered a dramatic hit in August, with 24,000 state residents no longer looking for work. Unemployment dropped slightly to 4.7 percent from 4.8 percent, but a policy analyst with Ohio's free-market think tank said that change was a result of the state's shrinking workforce.

Today's jobs report from the Ohio Department of Job and Family Services mirrors its last report, which found that 24,000 residents left the workforce in July. In addition, this month's report shows Ohio's private sector shed 5,000 jobs in August while government added 3,000. Both trends worry Joe Nichols at The Buckeye Institute.

"Three straight months of bad economic news after a strong start to the year for Ohio's labor market means there's clearly more work that needs to be done to improve the state's job climate," Nichols said. "Reforming Ohio's tax code and business regulations can put Ohio employers in a stronger position to hire, promote, and reward employees."

The most job losses in Ohio came in administrative, support, and waste services positions, with a total 3,400 jobs lost, a drop of 1.1 percent. The most job gains in August occurred in real estate, rentals, and leasing, adding around 1,000 positions, or 1.5 percent.

"A strong private sector ensures more opportunities for workers and adequate funds for needed government services," Nichols said. "Ohio clearly needs more reform to get employers, small businesses, and workers in a position where they can build up the economy and again make Ohio a national leader."

The Buckeye Institute analyzes Ohio's unemployment rate to identify policy solutions for increasing job opportunities and strengthening the state economy.

Subject: President Obama is ignoring the law

THE BUCKEYE INSTITUTE

Buckeye firmly planted to stop presidential power grab

From the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB), President Obama has shown a disrespect for the law by circumventing Congress. The Buckeye Institute is standing firm to stop such presidential power grabs.

NLRB not free to decree

Today, Buckeye's Legal Center joined in a legal briefing to the U.S. Supreme Court on NLRB v. SW General Inc., in which the Arizona-based company is challenging whether the president can (as he did) ignore the plain language of the law regarding who may serve as the NLRB's "acting" general counsel.

"Government is built on checks and balances to ensure no one branch has too much power," Robert Alt, Buckeye's president and CEO, said. "If the president can ignore any law deemed inconvenient, that sets a dangerous precedent for future presidents to pick and choose what laws to follow."

EPA gets its day (in court)

President Obama's Clean Power Plan has a murky history. Today, arguments for and against the plan received a scrubbing from the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit. In February, Buckeye's Legal Center sued the Obama Administration over the EPA's unconstitutional mandate.

The Clean Power Plan not only is an overreach in its attempt to regulate state energy markets, but also does not give states meaningful opportunities to decline its implementation – a pillar of U.S. federalism. That is why the U.S. Supreme Court issued a stay, halting the plan, until its journey throughout the courts is concluded.

Although today's case could be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court regardless of the outcome, the D.C. Circuit's decision could stand if:

1. Buckeye and our co-petitioners are successful and the next president declines to appeal the decision; or
2. The decision is appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court and the late Justice Scalia's seat is still empty, resulting in a 4-4 split decision; or
3. The U.S. Supreme Court declines to hear an appeal to the case.

It's a complicated path for a complicated case, but Buckeye's role is quite simple: Stand firm, deeply rooted against all cases of government overreach.

THE BUCKEYE INSTITUTE

As Ohio policymakers pursue major reforms to the state's criminal justice laws, The Buckeye Institute is making sure the principles of individual liberty and property rights are not just heard but strengthened across our state.

Today, in The Columbus Dispatch, Buckeye's president and CEO explained how civil-asset forfeiture reforms can protect innocent Ohioans while giving law enforcement the resources they need to keep our communities safe:

Ohio law enforcement needs reasonable tools to combat drug traffickers. And Ohioans need greater legal protection to assure that their property will not be forfeited to the state absent a criminal conviction. Happily, both objectives can be achieved through reforming Ohio's civil-asset forfeiture law. ...

Under Ohio's current law, after property is seized, prosecutors may commence a lawsuit against the property --- you read that correctly, the thing -- not the property owner. And the prosecutor may do so regardless of whether the owner is ever charged with a crime. The owner has no right to legal counsel, and must assert his or her rights in court at his or her own expense in order to get the property back.

As reforms to Ohio's civil-asset forfeiture laws continue to gain momentum, The Buckeye Institute will keep you informed of our work and successes protecting everyday Ohioans' rights.

Importance: High

Attached is more information for our office's controlling board request scheduled for this afternoon. Please let us know if you have any questions. Thanks, Erica

Good Morning Controlling Board Members,

Item #1 on the agenda for today is a request to use Emergency Purposes/Contingency funding to pay court ordered attorney fees in elections litigation. The request details some of the history in the case. I wanted to forward along information we shared with Senator Coley regarding the use of Emergency Purposes/Contingency funding for these types of cases (attached). There has been a history of using Emergency Purposes funding for these types of cases. Under the Dann and Cordray administrations, the Attorney General's Office was approved to use Emergency Purposes for attorney fees in election law cases. Under Mike DeWine's administration, our office has not requested the use of Emergency Purposes funds for election litigation attorney fees, until today.

We worked very closely with OBM and agreed that our operating budget cannot support this expense. I appreciate your consideration of our request and am happy to provide additional information if you have specific questions.

Thank you,

Christina Frass
